Instructions for Form 5792, Michigan First-Time Home Buyer Savings Program

Purpose

To allow eligible taxpayers to claim a deduction for contributions to a first-time home buyers savings account. Form 5792, Michigan First-Time Home Buyer Savings Program must be filed with the taxpayer's Michigan Individual Income Tax Return (Form MI-1040) to report account information. For more information see www.michigan.gov/taxes.

Michigan First-Time Home Buyer Savings Program

The Michigan First-Time Home Buyer Savings Program assists first-time home buyers with the purchase of their Michigan principal residence. An individual may open a first-time home buyer savings account with any financial institution authorized to do business in Michigan; the account may be used for the payment or reimbursement of eligible costs for the purchase of a single-family residence in Michigan by a qualified beneficiary designated on the account. A first-time home buyer savings account may be opened beginning January 1, 2022, through December 31, 2026.

A qualified beneficiary is a first-time home buyer who is designated as the beneficiary of a first-time home buyer savings account by the account holder. A first-time home buyer is a Michigan resident who has not owned or purchased (individually or jointly) a single-family residence during a period of 3 years before the date of the purchase of a Michigan single-family residence. The qualified beneficiary may be the account holder or another Michigan resident designated by the account holder.

A deduction may be claimed for contributions made in tax years 2022 through 2026 to a first-time home buyer savings account less qualified withdrawals made from the same account up to a total deduction of $5,000 on a single return or $10,000 for a jointly filed return, to the extent not deducted in determining adjusted gross income (AGI). Interest earned on the account is also deductible for tax years 2022 and after to the extent not deducted in determining AGI. For tax years 2022 and after, distributions that are qualified withdrawals, made to pay or reimburse eligible costs, are deductible only to the extent that they are included in AGI.

A qualified withdrawal is not subject to Michigan income tax if the withdrawal is made at least one year after the account holder opened the account. To be a qualified withdrawal, the withdrawal must be made from an account that the taxpayer designated as a first-time home buyer savings account on the taxpayer's income tax return.

Eligibility

A Michigan First-Time Home Buyer Savings account must have an account holder and a qualified beneficiary. The account holder may also be the qualified beneficiary. An individual may establish more than one first-time home buyer savings account but each account must have a different qualified beneficiary. However, a qualified beneficiary may be designated on more than one first-time home buyer savings account. The maximum account balance for an account is $50,000. However, accounts may continue to accrue interest if the maximum account balance has been reached.

First-time home buyer savings accounts may only be used for first-time home buyer program purposes. Any use of the account funds for any purpose other than for eligible costs by a qualified beneficiary for the purchase of a single-family residence in Michigan will subject the account holder to penalties and loss of the tax benefits described above. Eligible costs are the down payment and disbursements listed on the settlement statement.

Supporting Documentation

An account holder must submit specific documents for the first-time home buyer savings account with the account holder's income tax return, including:

- Account statements that show the contributions made during the tax year and the taxable interest or earnings on the account in the tax year for which the deduction is claimed
- Upon withdrawal of funds from the account, a copy of the real estate settlement statement that shows the withdrawal was used for eligible costs; and
- The Form 1099 issued by the financial institution for the account for the tax year in which the deduction is claimed.

A taxpayer who is claiming a deduction and who is not the account holder for the account(s) must provide:

- Account statements to show the contribution(s) they made; and
- Account statements showing the qualified withdrawal(s), if any.

Completing the Contributions Table

Lines not listed are explained on the form.

Account Holder's Name: Attach the account statements that support the claim. If you contributed to an account for which you are not the account holder, list the account holder's name.

Date of Withdrawal: Attach the account statements that support the claim. If no withdrawal was made, leave blank. If multiple withdrawals were made enter "various".

Contributions During the Tax Year: Report here the net contribution, which is any contribution less any qualified withdrawal made during the year.

If there is a qualified withdrawal in the year where more than one taxpayer contributed to the account, the contribution must be prorated. The proration is equal to the actual contribution less the share of the qualified withdrawal that is equal to the qualified withdrawal multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the taxpayer's contributions to the account and denominator of which is the total of all contributions made to the account during the year. The net contribution amount cannot be less than $0.

Example: Sarah, the account holder, contributed $6,000 to a first-time home buyer account. Another taxpayer also contributed $2,000 during the tax year for a total annual contribution to the account of $8,000. A qualified withdrawal of $5,000 for an earnest money payment also occurred. To arrive at her net contribution, Sarah must determine what portion of the total withdrawal she must net against her contribution. The net contribution is calculated as follows:

$$6,000$ (Sarah's contribution) / $$8,000$ (total contributions) = 75%
 75% (0.75) x $$5,000$ (withdrawal) = $$3,750$ (Sarah's prorated portion of the withdrawal)

$$6,000 - $3,750 = $2,250$ (Sarah's net contribution)

$$2,250$ should be entered in the contribution box for this account.

Interest Earned on Home Buyer Savings Account During the Tax Year: Only report interest earned on a first-time home buyer account for which you are the account holder.
